

That's a great point, Travis. Measurability is important because what can be measured can be improved. If you're going to take your mission, secret or not, then being able to measure it's success is important. I have a little work to do on that myself.